CABBAGE

Cancelling all previous prices.

Owing to the very severe Winter, all cabbage orders are booked subject to our privilege of reducing the quantities on your order to the proportionate amounts we feel our crops will yield on May first. Many varieties will be a total failure and we cannot tell until such plants as may be left in the Spring are transplanted just what acreage will produce crops. We will divide up our crops among the orders which our customers have handed to us on May first.

ONION

Owing to the extremely high prices of onion bulbs the past season the acreage of onion seed for 1920 is undoubtedly 75% less than the acreage in 1919. We take pride in our stocks and with only a normal crop we anticipate a shortage in onion in 1920 with higher prices.

RADDISH

We are proud of our Washington grown raddish. Our climatic conditions produce stocks which are nearer to French grown stocks than raddish seed grown anywhere else in this country. Puget Sound raddish seed produces a small top, very high colored bulbs, especially true to type. We cannot get as large a crop of seed per acre as can be produced in some of the sections in this country, but we can get superior quality.
